Abstract

Resources for Kanjur & Tanjur Studies (rKTs) is dedicated to making research on Tibetan Buddhist canonical collections openly accessible. The website provides comprehensive tools for studying canonical literature in more than 100 Kanjurs, Tanjurs, Tantra collections, and other collections of canonical literature. These include online catalogues, searchable e-texts, and an extensive archive of images of Tibetan manuscripts as well as secondary sources. The various databases are compiled and maintained by the members of the Tibetan Manuscript Project Vienna (TMPV), located at the Institute of South Asian, Tibetan and Buddhist Studies, University of Vienna. For enquiries about individual collections or questions of a more general nature, please use the contact page.

Historical Description

The Cone (co ne) Kanjur was created at the Gelukpa monastery of Cone Ganden Shedrub Ling (co ne dga' ldan bshad sgrub gling) in the Amdo region (a mdo), near modern Gansu (甘肃) and Qinghai (青海) provinces. It was commissioned by the local ruler, the 11th Cone King Makzor Gönpö (dmag zor mgon po, 1686–1728?), who raised a special tax (khräl) to finance the printing house. The project was overseen by Abbot Awang Chile Jiacao (1688–1738), who had received the title of national preceptor from the Kangxi Emperor (康熙帝, 1654–1722) after visiting the Qing court. While this indicates some Qing influence or patronage, the extent of court involvement is unclear.

Scholarly debate surrounds the exact date of the woodblocks: the most cited range is 1721–1731, though dates from 1733–1743 and as late as 1772 are also suggested. The Cone Kanjur was produced in the same era as the Derge Kanjur.

The edition is based primarily on the Lithang Kanjur (J, c. 1608–1621) and is considered a faithful copy, making it essential for studying the Lithang witness. The editors retained certain linguistic features from Lithang and corrected various errors and omissions. Although the Cone Kanjur follows the structural arrangement of the Peking editions, its textual descent is through Lithang from the Tshalpa manuscript tradition. It could not have been based on the Derge Kanjur, as it was completed earlier; textual similarities arise from their common Lithang ancestry.

The Cone Kanjur comprises 107 volumes in the traditional loose-leaf pothi format. A well-preserved set, acquired by the Library of Congress in 1926, provides details of its material characteristics: contemporary paper and ink were used for that printing, with wooden covers made in Shanghai in 1927. The paper is yellowish cream, highly absorbent, and the ink is grayish but uneven, reflecting worn woodblocks and lower-quality ink after centuries of use. The volumes measure about 18.5 x 56.5 cm, with eight lines of text per page inside a double-lined frame; foliation appears in a small frame on the left margin of each recto. The fore-edges are painted yellow with an organic dye.

Resources for Kanjur & Tanjur Studies (rKTs) is dedicated to making research on Tibetan Buddhist canonical collections openly accessible. The website provides comprehensive tools for studying canonical literature in more than 100 Kanjurs, Tanjurs, Tantra collections, and other collections of canonical literature. These include online catalogues, searchable e-texts, and an extensive archive of images of Tibetan manuscripts as well as secondary sources. The various databases are compiled and maintained by the members of the Tibetan Manuscript Project Vienna (TMPV), located at the Department of South Asian, Tibetan and Buddhist Studies, University of Vienna. For enquiries about individual collections or questions of a more general nature, please use the contact page.

Critical Source Materials for Buddhist Textual Studies

rKTs presents an extended repository of machine-generated e-texts. These digital renditions have been created using BDRC's OCR application for Tibetan, released in March 2025. The models for character recognition were developed by Eric Werner in collaboration with Élie Roux, Pentsok W. Rtsang, and the Monlam AI team.

Quality Statement

The present corpus largely constitutes raw OCR output without manual correction or editorial review. As such, researchers should note:

- Character recognition accuracy varies according to script type, image quality, and textual layout.
- The OCR models employed are in continued development.
- Results may exhibit inconsistencies in complex passages or where source materials present degradation.
- Occasional character substitutions, omissions, or misrecognitions may be present.
- Levels of quality are indicated by the following labels: Input (manually entered and reviewed); OCR+ (machine-generated with multiple proofreading steps); OCR (raw output without further verification).

Users are advised to verify critical passages against original sources when employing these materials for substantive philological or doctrinal analysis.

About rKTs

Resources for Kanjur & Tanjur Studies (rKTs) is dedicated to making research on Tibetan Buddhist canonical collections openly accessible. The website provides comprehensive tools for studying canonical literature in more than 100 Kanjurs, Tanjurs, Tantra collections, and other collections of canonical literature. These include online catalogues, searchable e-texts, and an extensive archive of images of Tibetan manuscripts as well as secondary sources. The various databases are compiled and maintained by the members of the Tibetan Manuscript Project Vienna (TMPV), located at the Department of South Asian, Tibetan and Buddhist Studies, University of Vienna. For enquiries about individual collections or questions of a more general nature, please use the contact page.
